Do:

- Build and maintain trust at all times
- Listen carefully to the person’s fears and concerns; set aside your agenda
- Have a conversation if you have concerns, not a judgmental or defensive argument
- Create a goal together or work towards a goal that the person hoarding has for themselves
- Seek therapy from a professional therapist. Family should take on the role of supporter and encourager.

Do Not:

- Force the person to clean, or get rid of their possessions. It needs to be a process and at their own will.
- Forcibly move a person who is hoarding, or force a clean-out. This can make the situation much worse.
- Get defensive, shame or blame the person who is hoarding.
- Attempt to give therapy to the person hoarding if you are not a licensed therapist.

Local authorities must enforce housing codes and may deem a home unfit for habitation, force someone to leave, or give deadlines for clean out.

What is Hoarding?
Hoarding is a mental health issue that has public safety implications.

Causes of Hoarding
Hoarding behavior has multiple internal and external causes including:

Biological Factors:
- There is some evidence that hoarding behavior can be passed down genetically from parent to child.
- People may learn hoarding behavior from family members. Some may have the opposite reaction and want nothing to do with hoarding.

Psychological Factors:
- People who hoard may have underlying trauma, unresolved loss or mood disorders.
- Hoarding behavior may be an attempt to fill a void resulting from loss.
- Hoarding may be an attempt to manage anxiety or stress.
- Person may be unaware of underlying causes and their effort on behavior.

Social Factors:
- Positive social relationships can lower the severity of hoarding.
- Negative interactions in relationships can increase severity of hoarding.
- Major life events like a death in the family, divorce, or life transitions can worsen hoarding behavior.
- Social isolation, embarrassment and the social stigma of hoarding can interfere in receiving treatment or asking for help.
